

Boundaries of the United States according to the 1783 Treaty of Paris, 1784

According to the Definitive Treaty of Peace signed at Paris, Sept. 3. 1783.

In forming this Map late particular Maps & Charts, were of great use; but what contributed most to its accuracy, were the unpublished Surveys, consisting of many thousands of Miles, forming a connection thro' the whole (except what lies N.W. of the double dotted line:) which Surveys with many good Sketches, have been furnished for this usefull (sic) work, by the Geog. rs and other curious Gentlemen, who for particular purposes, had made large collections of them.

This Map may therefore be said, to be composed from every Survey, and Sketch of Note, heretofore made in these Limits, conformed to the best Astronomical Observations,

By Wm. McMurray, late
Ast. Geog.r to the U.S.

The lines Singly coloured N.W. of the Ohio, are the divisions of that Country into Ten New States, by a Resolve of Congress of April 23rd, 1784
